Is there anything else you would like to add about your candidate's support of policies aimed at addressing maternal mortality rates?

The candidate has been advocating for better policies to combat maternal mortality as a state elected official and will continue on the federal level for more comprehensive policies as the U.S. Senator. These policies will focus on the 60% of preventable deaths like better access to healthy foods in disadvantaged communities, mandatory training of healthworkers in racial sensitivity, affordable and quality healthcare, extend postpartum coverage to 12 months, education of both female and male during adolescences on importance of being healthy physically and mentally, and access to more options beside giving birth in the hospital just to name a few.
